CHEVROLET AVEO XTREME

The Aveo XTREME brings big attitude to a small car, with fun and practicality in an eye-catching, head-turning package. It is a tuner concept for the all-new 2004 Chevrolet Aveo, which itself brings style, roominess and a fun-to-drive quality to the entry-level segment. The Aveo XTREME, along with the other XTREME concepts, are showcases for Chevrolet to develop and evaluate a wide range of parts and body kits that allow customers to personalize and customize their vehicle to their individual lifestyles.

The crisp, clean lines of the production model are accentuated by a custom ground effects package or body kit that adds new front fascia, wide rear fascia with integrated rear fender flares, new rocker panels and a roof-mounted rear wing. Other Aveo XTREME styling elements include clear-lens LED tail lamps and a Sparco locking gas Cap finished in brushed aluminum. All Aveo XTREME badging is finished in "Fritz-the-Katt Lime Green" exterior color. The result is a small car with a big attitude.

Inside, Aveo XTREME is a youth enthusiast's dream, especially for those who like to entertain their friends. In-vehicle entertainment begins with a Pioneer AVHP 6500 AM/FM stereo that also includes CD, DVD and MP3 playback, along with XM Satellite Radio and a 7-inch touch screen. Still more entertainment is provided by the PlayStation 2 game system that is integrated into the center console. It features wireless headphones and can be enjoyed on the video screens mounted on the belt bar, allowing Aveo Tuner passengers to play PS 2 games or enjoy a movie, while the driver enjoys pleasurable driving.
